

Abstract of the Disclosure

A user interface for a cardiac rhythm management device programmer. A plurality of cardiac rhythm management device families can be listed according to device family or according to specific model names and/or model numbers. In addition, high-level information related to specific cardiac rhythm management devices can be listed by a second module. The second module can be accessed through selection of a specific device family or model name and/or model number listed by the first module.